Subject Matter Experts: Flexible Effectiveness

Do you require additional resources on an instant call to complete side functions, your own staff cannot handle due to high workload or a lack of skills?

Subject Matter Experts (SME) can be a valuable add-on to your resources. With their skillset, they do not require a long familiarization with the given tasks as they are from within the industry.

We as AviationExperts see SMEs as a good leverage to overcome temporary shortages of manpower and skills for specific tasks. This means that our experts can take care of newly imposed side tasks not justifying a new employment, or simply fulfill those sidetasks distracting your staff from their regular functions. This does not mean that SMEs will be permanently placed in your organization, but can perform on a range of days only if the assignment allows so.

On the other hand, you can staff vacant positions with SMEs until you are able to recruit the ideal candidate for this post. Until then, the SME will act to your advantage preventing the organization from degenerating in its function and effectiveness. Our experts are all well trained and have a proven industry track record in their field of expertise. Their consultancy skills enable them to be independent self-starters by analyzing the situation and act accordingly. Once the task is completed they will leave the organization and will not cause further costs for you as our client.

Experienced SME's are able to close existing gaps in an airline's organization.
